Redefining The Future of Aging At Home

Many older adults are wondering how to maintain their independence and live in the home they love, while ensuring they have the right level of support and care they need as they age. Planning for that future care is often overwhelming and complex.

With the atHome Together Membership Program, Saint Elizabeth Community is offering an innovative way for aging adults to plan for their future care needs today, offering personalized care coordination, access to a continuum of services, long-term financial protection, and most importantly, peace of mind.

“As the aging adult population increases across Rhode Island, we’re excited to offer a solution to help seniors age in place – to not associate aging with decline, but rather with confidence, purpose and wellness.” said Director Jessica Smith. “With over 144 years of experience caring for older adults, Saint Elizabeth Community has always been at the forefront of serving individuals and families as they navigate the challenges that come with aging.”

Members join while they are healthy and living independently and, when the time comes that they need support, the members’ personal care navigator becomes their advocate, helping to navigate the healthcare system, arranging in-home services when needed, and offering support during times of need. Whether coordinating routine medical appointments or ensuring the right level of care is in place after an unexpected health event, this support provides peace of mind for members and their loved ones.

Take Action Now for Peace of Mind Tomorrow

Often people are forced to make major decisions when a crisis hits. With an atHome Together membership, you can rest assured that your future care is planned and secured. The program is open to adults aged fifty-five and older who are healthy and independent and meet certain financial and medical requirements. Enrollees must also live in Rhode Island at the time of membership.

As most adults age, they will likely need some form of long-term care services. At the same time, the majority of aging adults prefer to remain in their home.

The atHome Together program of Saint Elizabeth Community makes both outcomes possible, allowing members to age in place while receiving the compassionate care they need and deserve.
